Overview

Lindsey concentrates her practice on employment law, professional liability defense, and insurance coverage.

In her employment law practice, Lindsey represents and counsels employers in a wide range of labor and employment matters, including wage and hour issues, discrimination claims, and alleged wrongful terminations. She also assists clients with workplace investigations and counseling on various topics, including discharge and discipline, accommodation requirements, and employment agreements. Lindsey prides herself on staying informed of all the latest developments and trends in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and federal employment law.

In her professional liability practice, Lindsey represents attorneys, accountants, and other professionals facing malpractice claims. In this role, she strives to blend both zealous advocacy on behalf of her clients with sensitivity to the impact these claims can have on her clients' business and professional reputations. Her clients value her dedication to resolving malpractice claims as efficiently as possible and willingness to explore outside-the-box resolution strategies.

Lindsey also has an active insurance coverage practice and has experience representing insurers in declaratory judgment actions and bad faith litigation. She often counsels insurers regarding bad faith litigation-avoidance strategies, including coverage analyses.

Lindsey has experience handling all aspects of civil litigation defense, ranging from premises liability and property damage claims to significant business disputes.
